Scafide says culverts in Pecan Park must go

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis City Council ruled Tuesday that the culverts installed by some property owners in Pecan Park are in violation of a city ordinance and must be removed.

The city council was confronted with the problem of drainage in Pecan Park in June, when Max Elrod complained that the installation of culverts in some of the subdivision's ditches was causing his property to retain water.

The council tabled the matter at its first June meeting, but resumed discussion of it at the June 19 meeting, when the idea was proposed to install culverts on all properties whose owners were willing to pay for them.

However, Scafide informed the council at its July 17 meeting that a city ordinance prohibits altering open drainage ditches in any way that will obstruct or limit the flow of water, unless there is a compelling reason to do so.

He said the culverts would limit the flow of water, since the culvert openings are smaller than the width of the ditches. Therefore, in Scafide's opinion, the city could not install culverts in the Pecan Park ditches, and those property owners who had already done so were in violation of the ordinance.

Mayor Edward Favre said the property owners will be given a reasonable amount of time to restore the ditches to their former condition before the city takes action.

In other business, the council:
—heard an update from Carol Vegas on Project Pride;
—granted a special exception to Dominion

Theme park

Vic Franckiewicz appointed to Senate research committee

BY TRACI BONNEY

Play time is the subject of work time for Senator Vic Franckiewicz Jr. and other members of a special State Senate committee formed to study the development of a major recreational theme park in Mississippi.

Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye appointed Franckiewicz to the committee, which will meet this summer and fall to gather information. The committee is to report its findings to the Legislature during the 1991 session.

The committee's study is to include marketing, financing, infrastructure development, quality standards, economic impact, cooperative ventures, agreements and resource coordination between the public and private sectors.

Franckiewicz said he thinks a theme park could be an economic boon for the state.

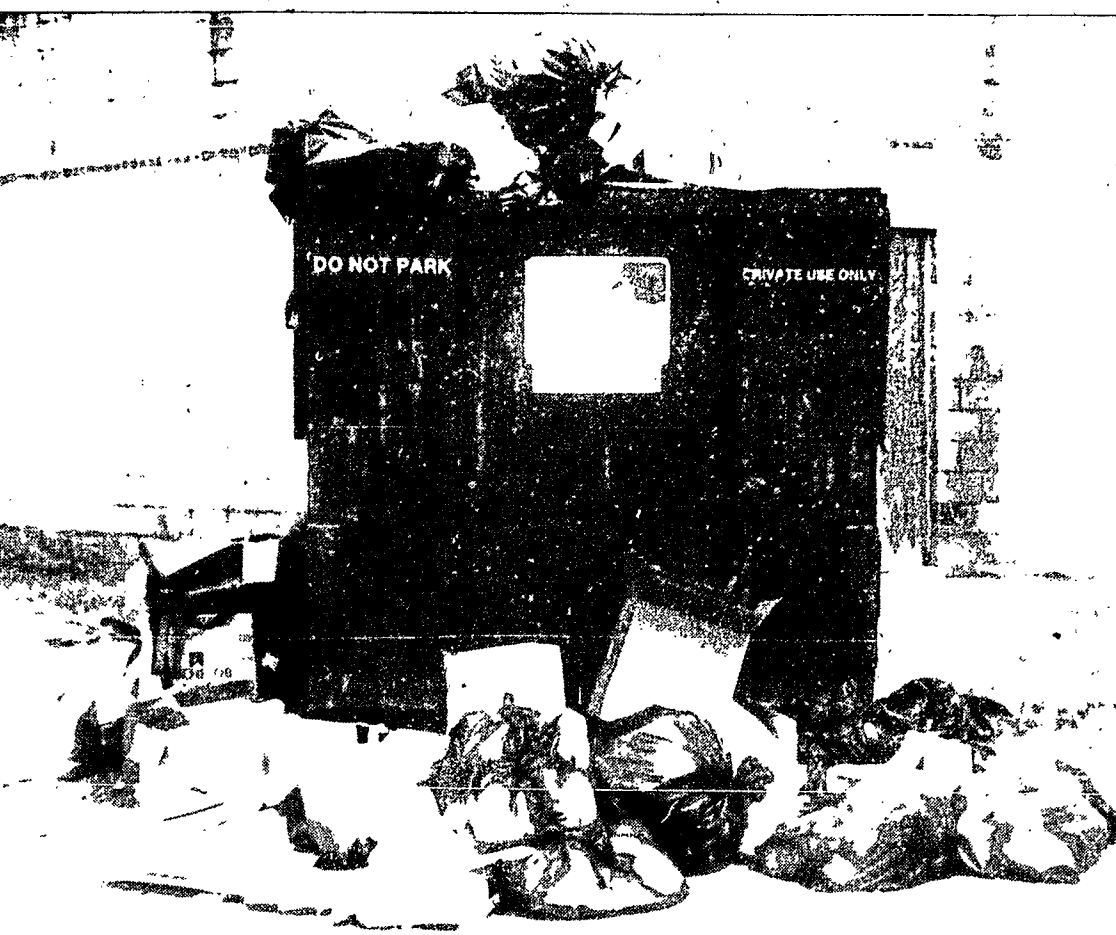

"Of course, I may be biased," he commented, "but I think the Coast is the best location for such a park. The Coast has so much to offer tourists."

"The park could be centered around the water and activities connected to it, or it could center around Stennis Space Center and things having to do with it."

"I think it's a tremendous opportunity if we could land one of these major theme parks."

Sen. Clyde Woodfield of Gulfport, chairman of the committee, said the state has had indications of interest in the past from companies, but hasn't had an organization that could speak with those companies

Garbage, garbage everywhere

City officials in Bay St. Louis are at wit's end over an ongoing problem with this dumpster in the municipal parking lot off Beach Boulevard and Main Street. They hasten to add, Gulf Coast Waste is not to blame for the overflow condition, as they empty the receptacle at no charge to the city as a service to surrounding merchants. Visitors and residents are filling the dumpster faster than it can be emptied, according to Bay St. Louis clerk of council Michael Cuevas. (Echo staff photo by Janet McQueen)

Carolyn has completed her internship and has taken a leave of absence from her remaining two years of residency to attend the mission. She specializes in pediatrics.

Two men charged in burglaries

BY TRACI BONNEY

Two Louisiana men were arrested early Sunday in connection with a burglary of the Shieldsboro Square Hallmark store, according to Bay St. Louis Police Officer Tom Burleson.

Burleson said Officer E.J. Favre made one arrest around 3 a.m. Sunday when officers stopped a vehicle. Arrested was Brian Keith Mitchell, 21, of Metairie, La. He was charged with burglary and possession of burglary tools.

Later arrested was Eric Eugene Firestone, 20, of Kenner, La., who turned himself in about 1 p.m. the same day. He was charged with burglary. Both men are incarcerated in the Hancock County jail under $10,000 bond each.

Burleson said the matter is still under investigation, and added that the two men are also wanted in south Louisiana for approximately 30 to 50 burglaries.

The two men also were charged with two counts of burglary each in connection with burglaries of Choctaw Plaza businesses, according to Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn.

The men were placed under bonds of $20,000 each for the charges with the Waveland Police Department.

GE Plastics reports reduction of emissions

GE Plastics has reported to the community and the EPA the status of chemical emissions from its Bay St. Louis plant, located in the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

The report was made in the month prior to the required date established by the Federal Government in the Superfund and Reorganization Act of 1986 (SRA Title III).

Dennie Dowell, manager, health, safety and environments, explained only nine chemicals used in the manufacture of plastic resins are processed in quantities sufficient for reporting during 1989.

The local plant now produces SAN (Styrene/Acrylonitrile) resins used in the manufacture of ABS (Acrylonitrile-Butadiene-Styrene) engineering thermoplastics.

Reported levels of emissions at the Bay St. Louis facility have been reduced by 85.2 percent from the levels reported in 1987. Dowell explained that all of GE Plastics is committed to cutting 1987 reportable levels 75 percent by 1992.

Dowell said the reduction in emissions is the result of improved operations and training, dedication of the operations/maintenance workforce, better defined test measurements and process revisions.

and answer individual questions.

A Hartford representative will be present to discuss AARP's automobile and homeowner's insurance programs and to answer questions.

AARP chapter and RTA unit members are urged to attend, but the seminar is offered as a public service to everyone age 50 and above.

Thumbing through Roget's

Ever get stuck for the right word?

I don't often, but when I do I go to my trusty Roget's Thesaurus, a fascinating and useful book chock-full of synonyms to words. I usually find the word I want there, or a word that brings the right one to mind.

I remember when I got my first thesaurus. It wasn't a Roget's, but that didn't matter to me.

It was a Christmas present from "Santa," part of a desk set that included a dictionary and a book listing reference sources.

My brothers and I sat in my room for hours that day, looking up words and reading the lists of synonyms. I was about 13 at the time, and my brothers were 10 and 9. Needless to say, our senses of humor were not very sophisticated back then.

For instance, my brothers proposed looking up words like fat, ugly, stupid, bathroom — synonyms a kid might want to use to impress or insult his friends.

While rude and at times crude, those lists also proved to be amusing. For instance, none of us had ever heard the terms and phrases corpulent, ugly as sin, spoony and water closet.

The Latin and other foreign phrases, while unpronounceable to us, caused even more laughter.

These days, I've grown up a bit. I no longer use the thesaurus to find bigger and better ways to insult people. Now I use it to get material for puns.

One of my co-workers, Tony Monti, is a chronic punster. I made the mistake of responding to a pun of his with one of my own one day, and I spent the rest of the afternoon fending off his rather rank verbal attacks.

He'd make a pun, wait for me to respond, then leave the room. While he was gone, I'd sneak a peek at my thesaurus, arm myself with a few zingers and wait for him to return.

"Ah!" you might say, "but that isn't fair."

Of course not; but punning isn't a fair game. It's most definitely foul — oops, I mean, foul.

(Sorry; puns sometimes slip out when I'm thinking about the subject.)

I know Roget didn't mean the thesaurus to be used in the manners described above, but then Nobel didn't intend that dynamite be used to blow up people.

Maybe that's a bad comparison. What I mean is that things generally have many more uses than the one for which they are created.

I don't mean to mislead; I do put my thesaurus to proper use on occasion.

It seems, too, that I've found a new use for it. Can you guess what it is?

(Hint: Re-read this column if you can't.)

Stennis Space Center engineers invent advanced hydrogen detection system

BY TRACI BONNEY

For Sverdrup employee Tom Koger and his associates, "smarter" is better.

Koger, a Bay St. Louis resident, was the project manager in a process that has resulted in a "smart hydrogen sensor," an advanced hydrogen detection system that will increase safety during space shuttle engine testing.

Koger and co-inventors Bud Nail of Picayune and Vivien Cambridge of Slidell, La., developed a prototype of the device when they realized there was a need for a fast, rugged reliable detection system.

"The conventional sensors that are now available weren't designed to handle situations like this," Koger said. "Factors such as the presence of other gases and extremes in temperatures can hinder conventional sensors in their job."

He said the inventors tried combining a device that was already available commercially with integrated microelectronics, and came up with a device that had a response time of about 10 seconds. This compares to a response time of one to two minutes for conventional instruments.

The sensor device is placed near a spot where a leak may be possible, such as a joint or valve. It can detect a leak of one percent hydrogen in the atmosphere, Koger said.

"In our application here, it is permanently attached to a spot and integrated with an alarm system of some sort."

The device is currently in the patent pending process. Koger said it took the team about two years to take their invention from an idea to the current prototype.

"We had the idea fairly early on," he commented. "We set it up and tested it, then NASA commissioned a formal design for it. Now we have a prototype that we're still evaluating."

Engineers from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida have shown interest in using the device to monitor their hydrogen storage facilities, he added.

The sensor was designed and built completely at Stennis Space Center. Heidi Langeberg led the hardware design and Alan Guess spearheaded the software development of the sensor.

The patent for the invention will belong to NASA and will have Koger's, Nail's and Cambridge's names on it.

"This is a pretty significant improvement on the state of the art, we think," Koger said.

about what the state can do in terms of tax breaks, bonds, and other financial aspects.

"We formed this committee so private investors would have someone in the state legislature to talk to about these things."

He said several companies have shown interest in placing a theme park in the Natchez, Madison County or Gulf Coast areas.

"Of course, I'm partial to the Coast, but I think a park will be good for the state wherever it is placed," he said.

The committee will meet soon, after Woodfield returns from a trip to New York, where a company will show him their plans for a theme park.

"When they wanted to show us what they're doing before we discussed terms, that pricked my interest. So, hopefully I'll have something to tell about when I come back."

Woodfield said Tuesday that the state House of Representatives and Governor Ray Mabus are expected to form similar committees so that both branches of the legislature and the governor's office can work to meet the needs of the state and of interested companies.

"If we don't succeed, it certainly won't be for lack of trying."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Things are beginning to shape up at Buccaneer State Park for the Telephone Pioneer Family Campers International Rally.

A number of campers have already arrived with more scheduled through Monday evening with registrations Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Some 450 recreational vehicles are expected for the weeklong meeting which is set to officially start Tuesday morning.

Visitors to our area will be from just about every state including some from Canada.

The Gulf Coast Council of Telephone Pioneers, Hancock County, cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis, U.S. Navy Seabees, Pass Isles Golf Club, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock Medical Center, Mobile Medic, Retired Senior Volunteers, Waveland Civic Association and area Boy Scout Troops are among those assisting in making the rally a success.

Several restaurants are making special offers for the visitors.

Waveland Civic Association is hosting a Mardi Gras fun parade Monday evening followed by a red beans and rice dinner, sponsored by the chamber and area restaurants for the campers.

The campers themselves have several things planned at Buccaneer as well as dinner Wednesday evening at the Hancock County Civic Center.

Homer Hall, whom I met over a year ago at a chamber board meeting, is wagonmaster for the rally and has done a tremendous job in pulling everything together.

On the economic side, the campers will leave many dollars in the area, and I hope all merchants will show good Hancock County hospitality.

We could in later years see many of these same folks return to our area as individuals or groups.

I hope each and every visitor will have a great time.

Litter on Hancock County's roads is a serious problem and seems to be on the increase, especially on the back streets and roads.

Just this week, a resident was charged with littering and fined $147 in Justice Court.

I just wish the people of our area would have the same pride in their communities as those do in other countries.

While I was on vacation, I did not see any litter in four countries. It is not tolerated, and everyone knows that it is a serious offense to litter.

There are some folks who need to be made examples of, and I am hoping that if someone is stupid enough to litter, they should pay the price.

I have noticed, that while I was on vacation, Rocky Gaudin was named head football coach for Bay High School.

I know Rocky did a fine job as defensive coach at Hancock North Central for many years, and I wish him well with his promotion.

You will be hearing a lot more about Gaudin in the weeks to come as football season is fast approaching.

By the way, it is very good news about the reorganization of the Bay High Booster Club. This should help sporting activities at Bay High, too.

U.S. should proceed with caution in Soviet relations

The first week in July has seen a number of interesting developments in international relations.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has been meeting with his Congress where he is catching a lot of flak from the hardliners who are angry over his perestroika initiatives and from reformers who do not think his initiatives go far enough.

The next few months will be a time of serious testing of perestroika, and I think Gorbachev's leadership may be in jeopardy, though not necessarily as a result of the criticism from his Congress.

The Soviet Union's economy is in shambles. Food is scarce, housing is poor, and the country's coal miners are threatening to strike again. Amazingly enough, both Soviets and Americans living there say their economic stability was better before perestroika than now.

In response to all these developments, observers in the United States want to prop up Gorbachev. I think it would be dangerous to put too much stock in one man. We should not base a lot of our decisions, especially our NATO strategy, on having Gorbachev in office.

Another outrageous response has come from the liberals in the Congress who have suggested economic assistance to the Soviet Union. That's the most ridiculous idea of all. We still have too many problems to deal with in this country to be even discussing exporting aid to the Soviet Union.

President Bush convinced NATO's foreign ministers to certify as NATO strategy that nuclear weapons be used in the face of superior conventional forces only as weapons of "last resort." I have no problem with that modification in strategy because I think it represents an acknowledgment of an existing

BEST program may become center of major political controversy

If the BEST education program is still not funded and is inoperative by the time elections come around in 1991, just who is to blame very likely will become a center of major political controversy.

Already there is considerable finger pointing going on between Gov. Ray Mabus and legislators as to who was at fault for the failure of the recent 13-day special legislative session to come up with finances to implement the $182 million three-year educational reforms.

Mabus is insisting that he gave the Legislature ample options to provide the revenues for BEST from the non-tax-hike menu he laid out, with a state lottery and gambling taxes on video poker slots as the entre.

Many lawmakers, apparently in the belief Mabus may come into their area and take potshots at them for the special session debacle, have made statements in their home town newspapers blasting the governor for his unwillingness to compromise on revenue measures that could be considered.

This had all of the makings of a continuing brou-ha-ha between Mabus and the Legislature that could carry over to the stump in 1991.

Mabus said in an interview last week he hoped that didn't happen. His hope, he said, is that the education reforms would be settled by then and would not spill over into the political arena.

"Education should not be used as a pawn or a political football," Mabus said.

But the 41-year-old governor, who will be the first governor this century to seek a second successive term, was quick to point out that "I don't think it hurts you (politically) too much for education."

Also, with possibly his re-election campaign in mind, Mabus said, "I also don't think it hurts you to protect the taxpayer."

Mabus has been adamant since he first proposed his ambitious education reforms last November that they could be installed without any new taxes, a view that is not shared by most legislative fiscal leaders.

Although he maintained his no-tax-hike facade at the June special session, Mabus did quietly yield on two tax measures that were tossed into the revenue mix in the Senate. One was a 3 cents per pack increase in the cigarette tax and the other was a 6-cent tax on long distance telephone calls.

And he endorsed a 7½ percent increase in the state wholesale price markup on liquor, which in the distilling industry is considered a state tax hike.

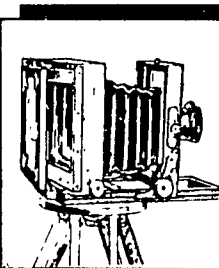

But Mabus said the special session proved to him that "the money is there to finance BEST without raising taxes." When he speaks of "taxes" he obviously means a general increase of income or sales taxes.

"I don't trust them (the Legislature) to stop with funding BEST with a tax increase. They would use BEST as a reason and then pass a lot more for general government," Mabus declared.

Mabus contends that education should be the funded first by the Legislature out of available funds, and "then look around and take care of other state government needs."

If he had opened the special session to a general tax increase, Mabus said, "I seri-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hancock schools raise taxes instead of pinching pennies

Dear Editor:

The Saturday, July 14 issue of The Sun Herald contained a story on how Hancock School Superintendent Terrell Randolph has "pinched pennies" for the last few years in renovating and building various school buildings.

As far as I'm concerned, the schools have not saved pennies. The superintendent has just seen to it that our taxes increase yearly, and I might add, not small increases either.

The July 15 edition of The Sea Coast Echo is proof enough. It had as one of its headlines something to this effect, "school budget to go down but taxes to go up."

I think the superintendent and other school board officials should learn to recognize the ridiculously high bids being submitted on school construction.

Paying close to $400,000 for an eight-room addition to Gulfview School, for example. What's in a classroom? Four walls, a ceiling and a floor, and nothing plush at that.

The contractors must be laughing all the way to the bank while you and I cry on the way home from making a loan just to pay our taxes.

medical care, food and basic necessities.

The Kergosians will spend their first five months aboard the ship in the Discipleship Training School.

During this time they will travel all over Europe and part of Africa shipping food and medical supplies and doing ministry work. On a recent excursion, the ship delivered an ambulance to a third world country.

The training school is part of a requirement to become an official member of the crew, which they hope to be able to do.

"We may be gone anywhere from six months to a year. It depends on whether we get the chance to become part of the crew," Bill said.

Their children, three-year-old Elissa and two-year-old Laura, will be right at their parents' sides. A school on board the ship offers kindergarten through twelfth grades, taught by resident teachers.

Doctors, lawyers and other professionals are members of the crew, but the ministry also gets people without college training to do various jobs.

"It's like a floating city. Everything we'll need will be on the ship," Carolyn said.

They had been talking about doing some type of ministry for several years and heard about the Mercy Ships ministry run by Don Stevens while living in Corpus Christi, Texas.

It is a volunteer program in which the participants must pay for their own room and board.

"This is the only way something like this can work, and because they charge people, they make sure they have people who really want to do this. It's people giving totally of themselves," Bill said.

situation.

The Soviet-led Warsaw Pact has unraveled and with the easing of East-West tensions, there is little threat of an attack that would prompt NATO's introduction of nuclear weapons.

But the issues that remain are the existence of an estimated 380,000 troops in East Germany and the Soviets' refusal to seriously negotiate on conventional weapons.

Until the Soviets completely pull their troops out of East Germany and renew conventional weapons talks, the United States should not presume that they present no threat to European stability.

There is no doubt that things are changing in the Soviet Union and in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Basically these changes are for the good. But as my old friend Ronald Reagan wisely concluded in his dealings with the Soviet Union, we should trust, but always verify.

ously wonder if they could have passed it." After all, he said, there was nothing to prevent the Legislature from considering and passing a general tax bill at the 1990 regular session.

When it was pointed out to him that his anticipated veto was the chief obstacle, Mabius snapped: "The threat of a veto never stopped them before."

Mabius said he has not decided if he will call the Legislature back into another special session in an attempt to fund the BEST program or leave the future of the education program up to the 1991 Regular session when he will not be able to limit what lawmakers can consider.

Some legislators believe there is no longer the public support for the BEST program that it had when Mabius was taking it on his "dog and pony" show around the state last fall.

As a consequence, speculation has begun to arise that the 1991 Legislature could try to dismantle big chunks of the BEST program as it now stands on the books, particularly the $780 million bonding authority for school construction and school buses.

Cochran's mobile office plans Bay St. Louis stop

Senator Thad Cochran is dispatching his mobile office staff to several Gulf Coast area counties on July 25 and 26.

Included are stops in Bay St. Louis and Leakesville.

On Wednesday, July 25 the senator's mobile office staff will conduct an office hour from 1-2 p.m. at the Green County Courthouse in Leakesville.

On Thursday, July 26, the mobile office will be at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis from 11 a.m. until noon.

Citizens who may have a problem involving a federal agency, or wish to discuss issues before the 1990 session of Congress, are invited to stop by Leakesville and Bay St. Louis during office hours and visit with the senator's staff.

The mobile office visits are part of the constituent service program Cochran initiated to help provide contact between his office and residents and officials at the local level in Mississippi.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Strolling through the Farmer's Market the other morning, and buying some of the oh-so-fresh vegetables and fruits on display, I eagerly grabbed up a goodly amount of tiny, tiny new potatoes, some no larger than a marble, for these are among earth's great culinary treats, at least to me.

"New" potatoes, of course, are simply potatoes which have been harvested before the skin has "set" and thus are not fully mature. Gardeners will often "rob the hills" (If I could grow potatoes, I know that I would be a prime "robber") to get a taste of the tiny, early potatoes.

You'll sometimes find skinned spots on these "bitsies" as the skin is quite tender and not as fully set as potatoes which have reached maturity. They are most readily available in spring and summer.

Just briefly, briefly steamed or boiled, skins on, of course, splashed with melted butter and dusted with grindings from the pepper mill, new potatoes are one of nature's true and simple gastronomic delights. So, you see, nature's bounty comes to us in small as well as mammoth sizes, and, in this case, smaller is definitely better.

Potatoes, whatever size and sort, have been a mainstay of the world's food table for a long, long time. The potato has crisscrossed the oceans many times, thousands and thousands of miles, West to East and East to West. It's generally conceded by food authorities that the potato is one of the New World's gifts to the Old.

Because the white potato is such a staple food in Ireland, and commonly called the Irish potato (as distinguished from the sweet potato or yam) many think that the "spud" originated in the Emerald Isle.

Not so! Potatoes stem from Central and South America, and were very important in the diet of pre-Inca Indians in Bolivia and Peru, who lived on the high plateaus of the Andes Mountains some 200-plus years ago.

The Spanish Conquistadores took potato plants home to Spain it is generally agreed, and from that point the confusion and contradictions start! No one can say for sure, after endless debate, where or by whom potatoes began their journeys back and forth, but just about every historian has an opinion on the subject!

An easy, tasty potato dish is one which came to America along with "les filles de cassette" the "casket girls" who were brought from France to Louisiana in the early days, as prospective brides for the lonely male colonists.

Each young lady, a poor but respectable orphan, was outfitted with a cassette, or trunk, containing her trousseau, hence the name "casket girls." They brought, in addition to their trousseau, tasty recipes still used in our kitchens in New Orleans and on the Coast. They found mates, reared families, and truly started Creole cuisine!

Interestingly enough, a side-light to history: in addition to the casket girls, a contingent of "ladies of the evening" (prostitutes) were released from French jails on condition that they go to the New World as prospective brides.

And, as Mark Twain observed, the prostitutes left no descendants, while the respectable casket girls seem to have been quite prolific—I have known many of their descendants!

At any rate, there's a recipe using the potato which the casket girls brought with them:

POTATOES FILLES A LA CASSETTE
8 medium potatoes, peeled
1/2 cup butter
Salt to taste, pepper also
1 onion, minced
2 Tbsp. snipped parsley
(chopped)

Slice the potatoes quite thin. Cover with cold water, let stand for a few minutes, then drain and pat dry. Brush a 1 1/4-quart shallow casserole with butter. Arrange overlapping potato slices in the casserole dish, reversing the direction of each new layer until the casserole is full. Season and butter layers as you go.

Sprinkle the top with minced onions and parsley, and bake, tightly covered, in an oven preheated to 425 degrees, for 45 minutes or until the potatoes are crisp and tender. Remove the cover, and place the dish briefly under the broiler to brown just before serving. (Six servings).

This dish is much like the famed "Potatoes Anna" of French cuisine, a simple but elegant dish. For "Anna" you slice the potatoes quite thin also. Then butter a small round baking dish and line the bottom with potato slices, spreading a tablespoon of butter over the layer, and repeating until potatoes are all used. Bake as above.

Then, and here comes the "French touch"—to serve, turn the baking dish over a heated platter. The potatoes will be in a golden brown molded form. Decorate with a few sprigs of parsley—a sort of grandiose potato cake!

(Copyright, 1990, Katharine D. M. Caire)
P.S. Potatoes, by the way, are an addition to a kitchen arrangement. I keep potatoes in a colorful basket, along with cucumbers, lemons, peppers and whatever else is on hand, on a kitchen counter or table.

Kids can have fun while cutting out a yummy snack

Growing children need more than three meals a day, so smart snacking is important. However, getting kids to eat the "right stuff" isn't always easy.

It helps to serve foods that look tasty. Interesting shapes and textures increase interest, as do simple finger foods. Chocolate Sponge Cake Cut-Outs satisfy all of these requirements.

Start by making the easy sponge cake recipe. (It needs only 12 minutes of baking time.) Note that protein-rich eggs are the main ingredient and added sugar is kept to a reasonable amount.

Then, the fun begins! Pass out cookie cutters and let your kids cut their favorite shapes from the cooled cake. (Simple patterns work best.)

Set out a variety of nutritious filling ingredients such as softened cream cheese and jelly or peanut butter and sliced bananas.

Children can spread the fillings on top of the cut-outs and eat as is or top with a second piece to make a "double-decker." Yummy either way!

A hint for moms: Fat inhibits the foaming of egg whites, so be sure that beaters and bowl are clean and that there is no trace of yolk in the whites. Use only metal or glass bowls because plastic bowls tend to absorb fat.

CHOCOLATE SPONGE-CAKE CUT-OUTS
6 eggs, separated
3/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
2/3 cup sugar, divided
1 teaspoon vanilla

1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
Fillings (listed below)
Lightly grease grease 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1-inch jelly roll pan. Line bottom with waxed paper and grease again. Set aside.

In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar at high speed until foamy. Add 1/3 cup of the sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating constantly until whites are glossy and stand in soft peaks. In small mixing bowl, beat egg yolks at high speed until thick and lemon-colored. Gradually beat in remaining sugar and vanilla until blended.

In small bowl, stir together cocoa, flour and salt. Sprinkle over whites. Add beaten yolk mixture. Gently, but thoroughly, fold yolk mixture and flour into whites. Pour into prepared pan and gently spread evenly.

Bake in preheated 400° oven until top springs back when lightly touched with finger, about 10 to 12 minutes. With spatula, loosen cake from sides of pan and invert onto rack. Carefully pull waxed paper off bottom of cake. Cool completely.

Using cookie cutters, cut shapes from cooled cake. Spread or top one side of each cake shape with filling ingredient(s). Place 2 cake shapes together to make "sandwiches," if desired.

Filling suggestions: Softened cream cheese and jelly; peanut butter and sliced bananas; marshmallow fluff; softened ice cream; etc.

BY JANET MCQUEEN
Waveland Little League's 13-14-year-old All-Stars have set their sights on the South District championship.

The team won a Tuesday night elimination game against Harrison-Hancock, 12-11, in the All-Star Dixie Boys Tournament held in Purvis.

According to Coach Bernard Tusa, the Waveland team held a comfortable 11-2 winning margin going in to the sixth inning, but the Harrison-Hancock team battled back, scoring nine runs in the last two innings.

Waveland added one run in the seventh to claim the victory. Pitcher Cory LaFontaine is credited with his second win, and pitched all seven innings.

The score of a Wednesday night game against host team Purvis was unavailable at press time, but Tusa said "We definitely have a chance to beat Purvis."

If Waveland wins, they will play top ranked Poplarville

Thursday night for the championship.

Tusa is assisted by Frank Bonano and Kenny Giles, assistant coaches.

"There is a lot of excitement about this team; this is the first year we have had a team for the older boys," Tusa said.

Favre expected to start 1990 USM season despite injuries

USM quarterback Brett Favre is expected to start the 1990 football season, as he has the last three, despite injuries sustained in a one-car accident Saturday night.

Favre was injured when he lost control of his car near his home in Hancock County. The car flipped and came to rest on the passenger side against a pine tree, according to Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

Peterson said there was no evidence of drugs, alcohol or speeding contributing to the accident.

According to Favre, an oncoming driver failed to dim his headlights. Favre swerved to avoid him and lost control of the car in the loose gravel of the road shoulder.

He sustained injuries to his liver, abdomen and left knee, but no other damage was reported by his physician, Dr. Jare Barkley.

Favre's 1989 Nissan Maxima was totaled.

Jare said Favre's abdominal muscles were still tense and sore Wednesday as a result of Favre's seat belt, but Favre is making progress.

Favre had already missed spring drills while recuperating from off-season arm surgery.

Now he will miss some of the fall drills, but plans to study the team's playbook while he recovers.

"Forget football season," he said. "It's the offseason that I've had to worry about."

"First the arm surgery, now the accident. I'll feel a lot safer when the season starts."

Favre is the son of Hancock North Central football coach Irvin Favre and his wife Bonita.

Retired, active phone company employees gather for convention at Buccaneer Park

BY TRACI BONNEY

Members of the Telephone Pioneers Family Campers are setting up in Buccaneer State Park for what they expect to be the biggest convention in their history.

Homer Hall of McComb, the wagonmaster for the gathering, said about 450 camper units from 26 states and the Canadian province of Ontario are registered so far for the week-long event. He expects the final number of units to be about 500, which means around 1,000 people will be spending a week or two in the park.

The convention starts Monday, July 23, with a Mardi Gras-style parade in the park for the campers.

However, many campers already have arrived and set up housekeeping in their trailer spaces.

Many of these campers, like Dean and Ommye Clapp, are "full-timers," people who stay on the road. Dean Clapp said full-timers must have a home base for their banking, getting drivers' licenses and other activities. He and his wife chose New Hampshire.

"They're a frugal state," he said. "There aren't a lot of taxes there."

The Clapps have been full-timers four years. "But I imagine at our age we'll get 10 more years out of this," he said.

The Family Campers are part of the Telephone Pioneers of America, a service organization founded after World War I and made up of retired and active telephone company employees. Those eligible for membership are men and women who have worked with the telephone company at least 15 years and are involved in local service projects.

The convention in Buccaneer Park is being sponsored by the Magnolia Bells, the Mississippi branch of Telephone Pioneers. Hall's wife, Billie Jane, said the Magnolia Bells have spent more than two years planning the event.

"We chose Buccaneer because it was the only campground in the state big enough to handle this number of people," Hall remarked.

When the Bells began planning the event, Buccaneer was not large enough to accommodate it. However, the Mississippi State Parks Department has added 300 camp sites at Buccaneer over the past two years.

Hall said the State Parks Department is only one of many organizations which has been involved in bringing the convention to the Coast. "The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, the county board of supervisors, just about every organization in the county has been very much involved in this. Everyone has been very cooperative."

He added that local telephone company employee Jay Lagasse is serving as liaison between the county and the campers.

In addition to the Monday Mardi Gras parade, other activities include a trip to New Orleans, a red beans and rice dinner, opening ceremonies July 24, a craft show, a catfish fry and a dinner dance.

O.P. Brown polishes his camper.

Junior Deputy program sanctioned by Explorer Post

Sheriff Ronald Peterson announced the establishment of a Junior Deputy program under Explorer Post 55.

Explorer Post 55 is sanctioned through the Boy Scouts of America, New Orleans Area Council.

Peterson stated, an Explorer Post is basically a career-oriented field geared toward a specific job field.

"We are offering our youth a chance to get involved in the community and decide on a career field," he said.

Staff Sergeant Pauline A. Ruhr has been assigned as adult advisor.

An election was held after the basic orientation, and the youth members elected their own officers June 15.

Elected to the staff positions were Joseph Vittur, junior deputy commander; Angela Hurt, junior deputy vice commander; Michelle Necaise, junior deputy secretary; and Stella Billard, junior deputy treasurer.

These youths will be studying criminal justice, accident investigation, booking procedures, radio dispatch and other law enforcement related works.

Instructors and training will be provided by local, state and federal law enforcement agencies.

Junior deputy ages range from 15 to 20 years of age. The group will meet the second and fourth Tuesday of each month from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Interested youths may contact Staff Sergeant Pauline A. Ruhr at the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Monday through Friday from 2 until 10 p.m. at 467-5101.

Salttillo donation

Susan Long, vice president of the Bay High Business Club, presents to Mrs. Kathy Chapman a $200 check to be donated to Salttillo Mission in Mexico. Chapman, sponsor of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Youth Organization, coordinates the CYO's trip to the mission each summer. The Business Club, sponsored by Mrs. Freda Cameron, earned the money by conducting two fundraisers throughout the year.

Twelve local students participated in the 43rd session of Mississippi Girls' State on the University of Southern Mississippi campus June 17-22.

Girls' State is an annual youth citizenship training program sponsored by American Legion auxiliaries throughout the state. The program teaches high school senior girls about the governmental process on the local, county and state levels.

During the week-long event, the girls staged mock bill-writing sessions, caucuses, campaigns and elections. Officials were elected to serve the fictitious state of "Magnolia" and its counties and cities, named for former American Legion department commanders and presidents.

Of the approximately 410 girls attending, Consuela Kinsey of Columbia and Jennifer Medley of Gulfport were selected to represent Mississippi at Girls' Nation later this summer.

Participating from Bay St. Louis were Janelle Bufkin, daughter of John and Carmel Bufkin—Johnson County circuit clerk and Alagista newspaper staff; Rachel Lynne Fillingame, daughter of Les and Barbara Fillingame—Johnson County senator; Alisha LaFontaine, daughter of Christie LaFontaine and Robert LaFontaine—Pace County representative;

Catherine Ohman—District 1 Nationalist Party Manager and Alagista newspaper staff; Kelly Oliver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne U. Oliver—District 3 circuit judge; and Katherine Amber Young, daughter of Dan and Carol Young.

Also attending were Leslie Diamond of Diamondhead, daughter of Jack R. Diamond and Doris F. Diamond—District 1 assistant district attorney;

Dena Caplinger of Kiln, daughter of John and Judy Caplinger—Huggins commissioner; and Susan Michelle Dean of Pearllington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. "Boogie" Dean—Hartsfield chief of police. Participating from Pass Christian was LaWanda Singleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huey P. Singleton—District 2 senate monitor. Attending from Waveland were Summer Black, daughter of Drs. Elliott and Sheila Black—Johnson County representative; and Jessica Erin Johnson, daughter of Don Johnson and Elaine Ladner, Alagista newspaper editor.

Kinney elected president of MS Governor's School

BY LIZ HAAS

Rebecca Kinney of Pass Christian, an Our Lady Academy student, was elected president of Governor's School at the Mississippi University for Women campus in Columbus.

A total of 150 boys and girls across the state entering their junior or senior year were chosen to attend the school on the basis of ACT or SAT scores, an SA, transcripts and recommendations made by the school.

The annual school was held June 10 to June 30.

In order to run for president of Governor's School, a person must have been nominated by at least 15 other people. Four other students ran for the position. The only other office elected was secretary.

The students were required to take a three-hour college honors credit course in one of the areas offered. Kinney chose to take "Exploring Artificial Intelligence," a computer and robotics course.

The classes were from 8 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Other activities included seminars, speakers and recreational activities.

At the closing ceremony, Kinney gave a speech in front of approximately 600 people, including former Governor William Winter.

At the ceremony, she received the only award given at Governor's School, the Academic Excellence Award in honor of Dr. Guy Rose who will be leaving this year.

Kinney was selected to attend the school partially on the recommendation from two Our Lady Academy teachers, Mrs. Julie Cranford and Mrs. Betty Bensabat.

Kinney serves as president of the Student Council at Our Lady Academy. She is also a member of the tennis and sailing teams and Campus Ministry. She is photography editor for the Yearbook and serves on the Division of Youth Council for the Episcopal Diocese of the state.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kinney of Pass Christian.

Letter to my son

Mother of a serviceman on USS Midway expresses feelings during time of crisis

BY INA CRANMER

My Dear Son,
Yesterday I spent the worst five hours of my life. For some reason, I woke up about 4 a.m. and decided I was up for the day, so I made a pot of coffee and wanted to finish reading an original version of "David Copperfield" since I had only 20 or so pages left.

About 6:36 a.m. I received a call from a family friend. He asked me if I had seen the news yet. He told me I needed to turn on the television, that there had been an explosion on the Midway.

"Oh, God, no! I'm not ready for this."
"Hold on, there's a number to call, but I didn't write it down," the friend said. "I'm calling friends in high places."

I started with my congressman. He had no list of the injured or the missing sailors, but informed me the damage was on the fourth deck.

I cried, I prayed, I got angry. I turned on a cable news channel and watched. I didn't feel that I was accomplishing anything, I didn't have any answers.

By 6:55 a.m. the friend called back just as I was writing down the toll-free number. I picked up the phone and started pushing buttons.

Busy. Okay, no problem. I had automatic redial. By 7:15 I knew I couldn't handle this alone.

Dad had gone to work at 5:30 with no knowledge of what was happening, since he always left the paper for me and read the office copy on his break.

I called your aunt and told her what I had heard on the news, complete with live photos at that time taken from the air.

She was visiting Granny 55 miles away and upon my completion of babbling on, said she was on her way.

Back to the toll-free number. Busy. Instant redial. Busy, time after time.

7:30. Make another pot of coffee. Call Dad. Stay at work. I'm doing all I can. Red Cross—yes—Sea Bee Base—overseas operation—they had no update other than what I knew.

Toll-free number—busy—instant redial—busy—instant redial—busy.

The Air Force Base. They didn't know anything about it.

7:45 Another live film of the USS Midway. No new update, 15 hurt, one missing. Oh, God, no!

I watch the live tape and fall on my knees praying, "Please, God, let one of the sailors standing on that deck be my son."

The prayer ending, I get angry again. Okay, if my son is one, let me get the call, I can be showered, packed and beg, borrow or steal the money to get to Japan in a matter of two hours.

The toll-free number—busy—instant redial—busy—on and on.

8 a.m. I call your girl. No, she hasn't heard. Tears flow on both phones. I gave her the toll-free number, your social security number and we both dialed with renewed determination.

8:15 a.m. I call a Navy sector of the Stennis Space Center near our home. They have no information.

Your aunt arrives, donuts in hand. She pries the phone out my hand to take over.

I shower, shampoo and am glad I just had a pedicure. I could be ready in less than two hours.

A call from your Dad. Stay at work, I'm still trying.

8:30 a.m. I look at your picture on the mantle, the one a buddy took of you with your new camera.

"No, God, not yet, he just started to live life. He's learning and growing, he's becoming a good sailor. He just called me and told me they were going out on a run, and that he'd call me when they got back to port.

He told me his nickname, and that he had a buddy he called Melver—a guy that could do anything with nothing. Lord, they've only just begun."

I pray, I cry, I get angry. 8:45. More news, only the same news. No, wait, nine of the injured are being airlifted to hospitals.

I take the phone from your aunt. I must get through.

AIRMAN
AN ERIC HOGUE

Toll-free instant redial—busy—redial—busy.

9 a.m. I call our insurance agent. She's a super person. I tell her about the Midway and tell her I'll come in to pay the auto insurance whenever I get some news. She has friends in the state department. She'll help if she can.

I call your recruiter. He tries to soothe me. No, he has no additional news.

Dad calls. No news. I'm trying.

INA CRANMER

Your great-aunt calls, a dear, dear friend from church calls—we pray for you—for all of you for strength, for healing, for faith, we pray for other parents, for other family members. We pray for all personnel to do their jobs swiftly and without error—we pray for every able-bodied person on ship to share in the process of relieving the pain and misery of their fellow shipmates.

We cry. I hang up and get angry. Angry at what? Now I recognize it—angry at feeling so helpless.

9:15. Instant redial—busy—instant redial busy—your girl calls. She's been holding your ID tag since we first talked. No news. We'll talk later. I'm glad I have call waiting.

I realize at this moment how happy and serene my life has been. I realize how petty my problems of daily life have been. I realize how badly I miss you.

Press redial—busy—redial—busy.

Your aunt looks really down. I wonder how I look—now—later maybe.

9:30. I call Japan. The lady says, no, your name is not on the list.

I hurry and call your grandma, hoping she hasn't heard anything about the explosion yet—hoping I can tell her the bad and good—all at once.

I think I convinced her, but you see, I'm not convinced, because the lady in Japan answered me too quickly, I now realize. I think that was a pat answer she was to give all incoming calls. My heart sinks.

Your girl calls Japan. Same answer, but she realizes quicker than I that the answer was mechanical, rehearsed.

Redial—busy—redial—busy. 9:45. Gonna be a hot one. I'm glad I did laundry last night. I look at your picture on the mantle. I pick up a piece of paper that's been on the coffee table since we talked on the phone last. I read off the list of abilities and certificates you told me you now possessed.

I remember the pride in your voice and the way you said "Ma" not a whole lot different from the way you said Ma before you could say Mother.

Another newsbrief. Same info, only now they say Japan won't let you come into port yet.

Redial—busy—redial—busy.

10 a.m. I switch to tea. I finally get dressed, make the bed. I have to act normal.

My "low battery" light comes on the phone. I go back to the bedroom. The phone in there is awkward because I can't move around much.

Other friends call, some knew for sure you're on the Midway, some weren't sure if it was the Midway or another ship.

10:15. Another call from Dad. No news. How much more can I stand? Redial—busy—redial—busy.

I guess the next three hours were reruns, because I remember coming back to life after your girls called to say she had gotten through—only she was crying so hard I could hardly understand her.

She calls me Mama, as you know, and she said the man who answered said he couldn't give her any info since she wasn't family and asked for my name and number. My heart stopped. I looked at your aunt and she gurned gray. GRAY.

I told her what was said. She couldn't talk. I waited about six minutes in total silence. Seems I saw nothing—I heard nothing—I felt nothing—sort of like total suspension.

No, I couldn't wait for them to call. I had to get through NOW. I guess the Lord knew I was about to crack. I got through.

I talked with a Lt. Laurence. I told him who I was, your mother, I gave him your name, your SS number. He wanted to know how to spell my last name. I told him I didn't know. Please tell me about my son.

He said you were not on the injured list. I asked about the missing sailor. He said he was not you.

I cried. I prayed. I think I smiled. I looked out over the lawn. I could see the green. I could see the blue sky. I could see the heat shimmer off the pavement out in the street.

I tried my legs—they worked—I called your girl—we cried—we laughed.

I tried to call everyone to let them know I got through. I've asked everyone to pray for the brave, the injured, the weary men on the Midway.

Son, I just want you to know, you were not alone in your time of trial. The USS Midway was being watched and prayed for by everyone who knows you're there. Please tell "Milver" he was in our prayers also, and that each and every prayer we claimed as victory was for the whole crew and every family member involved.

I hope my letter makes some sense. I may be writing too quickly since the pain and fear is still yet raw in my breast.

Just know, my son, I feel what you feel and remember what I've told you throughout your younger years:

"The Lord has a special task for you. You're here for a reason. Allow His will to be done through you."

With much love,
Mom

Local divers earn certification

BY LIZ HAAS

Sea Master, a local diving academy, recently graduated its first certified class after a final dive in Florida.

The three-week college accredited course cost $99 per person, not including the purchase of equipment, which averages approximately $150 per student, according to Janet Marengo, a member of the staff. The academy sells equipment and offers a discount to their students.

The course is offered on Monday and Wednesday nights from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. The lessons are held in the swimming pool at Bay Point Apartments and the final dive is in Florida.

The classes offered include open water, sports diving; advanced class, deep diving; dive rescue; dive master; assistant instructor; and instructor. Open water classes will start on August 6 and 27 and an advanced class will begin on August 11.

The staff members are Virgil and Darlene Phillips, Janet Marengo and Melissa Marengo.

Management series continues

The second of six planned American Management Association courses will begin Aug. 6 at the Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce Office.

"Fundamentals of Human Resources," will be offered on Mondays, Aug. 6 to Sept. 10, from 6:30-9:30 p.m. The office site is located at 1401 20th Ave.

The course will provide a comprehensive source of personnel ideas and techniques that can help managers contribute to a human resource program to increase productivity and profits.

Participants will be instructed on how to hire better employees, reduce turnover, motivate workers and improve interdepartmental relations.

The University of Southern Mississippi and the AMA designed a multi-course curriculum designed to assist managers, business owners and other individuals in maintaining and developing their skills in basic management principles.

The program is presented by the AMA Extension Institute and USM's Gulf Park campus at Long Beach, in cooperation with the Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce.

In order to earn a Certificate in management, each student is required to complete six AMA courses. Courses may be taken in any order and there is no time limit for the completion of the program.

Each course meets once a week for six weeks. All of the courses are complete within themselves and require no prior knowledge of the subject.

The first course, "Leadership Skills for Executives," was scheduled from June 25 to July 30. Additional courses will include: "Effective Team Building for Managers," Sept. 17 to Oct. 22; "Planning Cash Flow" Oct. 29 to Dec. 3; "Fundamentals of Modern Marketing," Jan. 7 to Feb. 11, 1991; and "Personal Strategies for Managing Stress," Feb. 18 to March 25, 1991.

To pre-register, send a registration form with a check for $175 per course to Dayonne McGuire, USM-Gulf Park, Hwy. 90 East Beach, Long Beach, MS 39560, to cover text and instruction. Registration and remittance must be received one week prior to the first class meeting.
